

Low levels of lithium are associated with a wide range of psychiatric disorders. ANRC essentials contains a level that is typical of dietary intake (approximately 0.3 mg), far less than the levels when used as a psychiatric medication (100 mg or higher), so it is enough to restore lithium levels to a normal level.